

Abound is a college guidance system tailored specifically for degree-seeking adults. We help students find the best place to earn an undergraduate degree, graduate degree, nursing degree or MBA.

The colleges we work with are regionally accredited and nationally recognized for program excellence, with courses available on campus, online, or both. For a program to be listed here, it has to go through a strict evaluation and excel at each point on our checklist.

We're here to help

There are plenty of websites out there offering to help students pick a program. A lot of them, though, don't actually give much to go on; they're just trying to capture information. Few, if any, are able to guide a student through the complicated process of choosing a school, applying, and completing a degree.

That's where Abound really stands out.

We have a vision and respect for higher education that other sites just don't have. We're not just trying to get students enrolled somewhere. Not every program is a good fit for every student. Our goal is to help each student find the best program that's right for them: the one that will see a student through the finish line.

Get to know Abound

Our team has been working in higher education since 2000. Seventeen years ago, we founded a college guidance system called Colleges of Distinction to help students ages 18-21 choose their school. But as the student population in the United States shifts to adult students (age 24 and older), we feel it's really important to offer college guidance just for adults, as well.

That's why we founded Abound. Our passion is to help students find a school that's not just known for excellence, but is also a good fit personally. The schools we work with come from 25 metro areas across the US, and counting. Our team is based in Austin, Texas — home of SXSWedu (an annual conference on innovations in learning) as well as many bright minds in emerging technologies.
